Proceedings

OF THE FRUIT AND VEGETABLE GROWERS ASSOCIATION OF THE U. S.

The Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association of the United States, met at the Neil House, Columbus, Ohio, June, 1886. The meeting was one of unusual interest. The various papers read all embodied deep thought and research. The most interesting discussions were on the value and use of fruits, and regarding the best methods of preparing fruit for market and preserving it for family use. The opinion seemed prevalent that evaporated fruit was bound to obtain and hold the highest position in public favor. Not only is evaporated fruit superior in appearance, in flavor, in healthfulness and in keeping properties, but it commands a much higher price; ordinary dried apples are worth from two to two and a half cents per pound, evaporated apples from eight to ten cents. Common dried peaches are worth from three to five cents, evaporated from eighteen to twenty-five cents. Ezra Arnold, the Illinois fruit grower, presented drawings and specifications of a cheap evaporator made and used by himself, with which he has had better success than with the more expensive dry houses and evaporators. He evaporated apples in two hours, strawberries in three hours, peaches in two hours, and all kinds of fruits proportionately quick. The evaporator is a marvel of simplicity and excellence, and can be made by any one at a very trifling cost. By its use millions of dollars can be saved the producer and consumer each year. There are thousands of families that dry large quantities of fruit annually in the old-fashioned slow way, and sell it at the old-fashioned low price, when they could, with but little expense, make an evaporator and evaporate five times as much fruit and sell it for five times as much per pound. There are thousands of families in the cities that can at times, when the market is glutted, buy fruit for less than the cost of production, and with an evaporator can prepare, in a few days sufficient fruit for a year's consumption, and at one-tenth the usual expenditure. Mr. Arnold said he did not intend to make or sell evaporators and would consign to the Association his right and title to his evaporators, provided the Association would procure cuts to illustrate the different parts and distribute gratuitously among the farmers, fruit raisers and consumers of the United States, complete illustrated directions for making and using this evaporator. On motion Mr. Arnold's proposition was accepted, and the following resolution adopted:

Resolved, That the secretary of the Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association be authorized to inform the people, through the leading newspapers in each State, that illustrated directions for making and using Arnold's fruit evaporator can be obtained by addressing our secretary, W. Orlando Smith, P. O. Box 104, Alliance, Ohio, enclosing stamps for return postage, and that the secretary draw on the treasurer for the necessary amount to defray expense of wood cuts, printing, etc. On motion a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Arnold for his valuable gift to the Association. On motion a vote of thanks was tendered the press through out the country at large, for the courtesies extended to us in publishing the call for the meeting of our Association, and for publishing the proceedings of our previous meetings. On motion the Association adjourned to meet at the Southern Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 9, 1886, at 10 A. M. W. ORLANDO SMITH, Secretary.

A Water Lily.

O star on the breast of the river,
O marvel of bloom and grace
Did you fall straight down from heaven
Out of the sweetest place?
You are white as the thought of an angel:
Your heart is steeped in the sun:
Did you grow in the golden city,
My pure and radiant one?
Nay, nay, I fell not out of heaven;
None gave me my saintly white;
It slowly grew from the blackness
Down in the dreary night.
From the ooze of the silent river
I won my glory and grace,
White souls fall not, O my poet;
They rise to the sweetest place.

M. F. BUTTS.

LITERARY NOTES.

—"The Battle Hymn of the Republic," that soul-stirring song of slavery-war literature, was written under the following circumstances: While Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and a party of friends were witnessing a military review, a short distance from Washington, they were surprised by a Confederate raid, and the wildest excitement prevailed, the party fearing that retreat to the city might be cut off. However, they reached Washington in safety, and on the way there the ladies in the carriage sang "John Brown's Body," in defiance of the late alarm. The grand tune was borne back to them by the escort, and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, under its influence and that of the scenes through which she had just passed, began the composition of her noble hymn. The following morning she awoke just as night greeted morning in the eastern sky, and there in the dim light of her chamber penned the noblest song which the incidents of the war called out. Mrs. Howe was born at New York, May 27, 1819, and married Dr. S. G. Howe in 1843.

—Of the hundreds of residents of the city of San Antonio, Tex., only a few who frequently meet a tall, slender lady, with raven brown eyes and hair, and with a singular attractiveness in her face, know that she is Mrs. Rose Hartwick Thorpe, whose famous poem, "Curfew Must Not Ring To-night," has given her a reputation in both hemispheres. How, at the age of sixteen years, the young country girl was led to write the poem, now so widely known, is thus narrated, as furnished by her personally for this publication: "The poem was suggested to me by the reading of a story, 'Love and Loyalty,' in April, 1867. I was then a plain country school-girl, not yet seventeen, residing with my parents at Litchfield, Mich., and under the pretext of working out mathematical problems, with my arithmetic before me, I wrote the poem roughly on my slate. I was forced to carry on my literary work under these difficulties because of the opinion of my parents, that my time could be better employed than in 'idle dreams and useless rhymes.' I wrote the first copy on my slate between four and six o'clock in the afternoon, but much time has since been spent in correcting and revising it. I had no thought that I would ever be able to write anything worthy of public notice. The poem was first published in the Detroit 'Commercial Advertiser,' in the fall of 1870. The editor, upon receipt of my manuscript, at once wrote me a lengthy letter of congratulation and praise, in which he predicted the popularity for the verses which they have since received. I had no literary friends, not even a literary acquaintance at that time, and did not know the simplest requirements for preparing my manuscript for publication." The poem at once attracted popular attention, and bestowed upon its young author a reputation which each succeeding year has enlarged. Although it has been published in innumerable forms and different books and collections, and has been translated into the French, German and other languages, the poem has never brought its author any financial remuneration, as is too often the case. "It raised me," writes Mrs. Thorpe, "from a shy, obscure country girl into public notice, and brings to my side yearly hosts of new and delightful friends. Wherever I go, my friends are there before me, and the poem, which I gave to the public with no 'right' reserved, while it has made a fortune for others and dropped golden coins in other pockets, has reserved for its author admiring friends." Mrs. Thorpe spends her summers in her native climate of Michigan, where she yearly recuperates from the effects of a Texan winter. The author is happily married, and is enabled to quietly enjoy the respect and love of her neighbors and friends, while her literary admirers are legion. —[Brooklyn Magazine.]

Newspapers are always useful, but the latest idea is to use old ones for sweeping purposes. Wet newspapers wrung nearly dry, torn in pieces and the shreds scattered about upon the carpet make much better to use than tea leaves when sweeping; they collect the dust and do not soil the carpet.

The True Inwardness of the Prohibition Party.

From the Independent.

We have sometimes feared that not a few of the leaders of the third party are actuated largely by political ambition; that their aim and end are not the triumph of temperance simply, but personal and political preferment. Their course has been in entire harmony with this assumption. In district after district where one or the other of the old parties has nominated unquestioned temperance candidates the third party has thrust its own man in the field, and frequently elected thereby the saloon candidate. They have derided and discouraged attempts to put either of the old parties right on the temperance question. They seem to glory in the defeat of Democratic, Republican or non-partisan temperance measures. The Voice, if we understand its course toward the effort to pass the prohibitory amendment resolution through the New York Legislature, and the local option bill through the New Jersey Legislature, has not only not assisted in either case, it has discouraged the friends of both. If we have mistaken its attitude, we will be glad to make a correction. It certainly belittles and discourages the movement in New Jersey to commit the Republicans against the saloon. It is true this movement may not be successful. But its intent is good. Its spirit is hostile to the saloon. It is a temperance movement; and what is it but party prejudice that arrays the influence of The Voice against it? What is it but blind devotion to party that prevents our neighbor from helping such movements anywhere and everywhere?
